

German integration courses

There is currently still a very high demand for integration course places. We have already responded to this demand and significantly increased our range of integration courses. Our integration courses are currently fully booked, so we can only offer you a few course places in the next few weeks; unfortunately, there are also currently no free placement dates.

Consultations will continue to be offered. As soon as we have free places in our course modules again, we will announce them on our website. Please also check with other course providers for free places in integration courses.

You can find an overview of the offers here

We hope that we will soon be able to offer everyone interested a free place in an integration course. However, you can usefully bridge the time until the course starts with the VHS learning portal. The VHS learning portal is a free learning platform and offers you digital courses for German as a second language. You can find the VHS learning portal here.

We thank you for your understanding and are happy to answer any questions you may have.
